Gary Paulsen, a three-time Newbery Honor winner for Hatchet, Dogsong, and The Winter Room says, “Reading for me is spending time with a friend.” This summer, surprise yourself and make new friends.

Summer offers a perfect opportunity for you to rediscover the pleasure of reading at your own pace. Connecting to stories that are exciting and engaging is key to developing lifelong reading habits. Reading, writing, and success in school are closely interrelated. Even more importantly, reading engages your imagination like no other medium.

There is also another reason for reading. According to a recent study by Yale University researchers, book readers survived almost two years longer than those who didn’t crack open a book. Unfortunately, the Yale researchers said longevity was not increased by reading newspapers.

When You Trap a Tiger

Would you make a deal with a magical tiger? This uplifting story brings Korean folklore to life as a girl goes on a quest to unlock the power of stories and save her grandmother.

Some stories refuse to stay bottled up...

When Lily and her family move in with her sick grandmother (halmoni in Korean), a magical tiger straight out of her halmoni's Korean folktales arrives, prompting Lily to unravel a secret family history. Long, long ago, Halmoni stole something from the tigers. Now they want it back. And when one of the tigers approaches Lily with a deal--return what her grandmother stole in exchange for Halmoni's health--Lily is tempted to agree, but deals with tigers are never what they seem! With the help of her sister and her new friend Ricky, Lily must find her voice...and the courage to face a tiger.

Tae Keller will visit virtually in the fall. She has asked us to collect questions to ask her during her presentation. While reading her book, start thinking about what questions you will want to ask her.

Tae Keller grew up in Honolulu, where she wrote stories, ate Spam musubis, and participated in her school's egg drop competition. (She did not win.) After graduating from Bryn Mawr College, she moved to New York City to work in publishing, and she now has a very stubborn Yorkie and a multitude of books as roommates. She now lives in Seattle.

Choice #1:

Dead End in Norvelt

Melding the entirely true and the wildly fictional, Dead End in Norvelt is a novel about an incredible two months for a boy named Jack Gantos, whose plans for vacation excitement are shot down when he is "grounded for life" by his feuding parents, and whose nose spews bad blood at every little shock he gets. However, plenty of excitement (and shocks) are coming Jack's way once his mom loans him out to help a feisty old neighbor with a most unusual chore—typewriting obituaries filled with stories about the people who founded his utopian town. As one obituary leads to another, Jack is launched on a strange adventure involving molten wax, Eleanor Roosevelt, twisted promises, a homemade airplane, Girl Scout cookies, a man on a trike, a dancing plague, voices from the past, Hells Angels . . . and possibly murder.

Jack Gantos will also visit virtually in the fall, and he will discuss Dead End in Norvelt and Writing Radar. Afterward, there will be a Q&A and writer's workshop.

Choice #2:

The Inquisitor's Tale

1242. On a dark night, travelers from across France cross paths at an inn and begin to tell stories of three children: William, an oblate on a mission from his monastery; Jacob, a Jewish boy who has fled his burning village; and Jeanne, a peasant girl who hides her prophetic visions. They are accompanied by Jeanne's loyal greyhound, Gwenforte . . . recently brought back from the dead. As the narrator collects their tales, the story of these three unlikely allies begins to come together. Their adventures take them on a chase through France to escape prejudice and persecution and save precious and holy texts from being burned. They're taken captive by knights, sit alongside a king, and save the land from a farting dragon. And as their quest drives them forward to a final showdown at Mont Saint-Michel, all will come to question if these children can perform the miracles of saints.
